Yes, Got my start in a cub about the same age and almost exited early because of another cub.

I bought a PA-12 Supercruiser with an Aeromatic prop. from a gal in NJ. I loved that airplane. I flew it all ove NY - NJ and then to Florida where I recovered it and then flew someone to Conn. where someone made me a close to $2,000 offer I couldn't refuse. Sold it and recently looked in Trade-A-Plane and found out I should have kept it. One is listed there now at $88,000 FIRM.

Was circling Joe Marr's a/c outfit that burned in Florida = looking out the side window - and my windshield turned yellow fow a fraction of a second and I heard a few engine pops. When I looked, I saw a yellow cub in the distance.

No way to tell how close it was but it had to be close. That other guy never even saw me.

They come at you from out of nowhere and they come at you from out of nowhere so goddamn fast.

You are absolutely right about what's going on.

It's all the planet cycles mixed with the surrounding star cycles.

Your 22 to 27 year sunspot cycle is a frequency RANGE or Parameter limits.

This is exactly the same as the electron eigenstates that Milo Wolff's Atom in a Box shows you.

Those eigenstates are Parameter limits that the electron remains in before jumping to the next energy level.

We can easily see the harmonic nature in the microcosm but it's hard to see resonances in the macrocosm because our lifespan is so short compared to those frequencies.

But it's exactly the same. It has to be.

I'll give my e-mail to you here:

It's zeusrdx@yahoo.com

I'll put your papers on my server and I'll put them on WebRing.

I'll send you a link when they are there.

You mentioned those old philosophers.

I was in the Egyptian museum in Cairo and on this block of stone is inscribed "I have given you sandals for your feet and brought food to you from upper and lower Egypt so that you can carve my image into this rock so that it will be pleasing to the gods so that all of us will benefit"

I thought to myself that this was almost a copy of the same words on the walls of the General Motors

Assembly plant in Linden, N.J. that I toured with my high school group.

After 5, 000 years, the message to the troops was still essentially the same.

Wow,

Yes, Milo if you made it through all that OK then you did get your Christmas present this year.

Now I know why you said you were worried BEFORE you went in.

I sure didn't know they had to do all that.

I guess you are flying to London.

When I go to London I travel light.

I only take a bag I can put in the overhead or under the seat.

Then I'm through customs where I immediately head to the airport underground station and I'm in town before anyone else.

There's an underground train about every ten minutes and it takes you to the city three times as fast as any bus or taxi can; maybe ten times faster at noon when London traffic is bad.

If your plane arrives in Heathrow after midnight though then you are forced to take a cab because the underground shuts down then.

I don't take too many things because you can buy everything there as well as here and you can't go on the underground with many suitcases.
